CHICAGO – If you missed Wednesday night's red-carpet affair with Ben and Casey Affleck [13] for "Gone Baby Gone," you can still hit up the Music Box Theatre at 3733 N. Southport Ave. in Chicago on Friday night for John Cusack's turn in the limelight.

Just like Wednesday, press will arrive at 5 p.m. on Friday and Cusack's red carpet is scheduled for 6 p.m. That means it'll be more like 30 to 45 minutes from then. The event is part of the Chicago International Film Festival (CIFF).

This time, Cusack's motivated to show not just for press and fans but because he'll be receiving a Gold Hugo award for career achievement. "Grace is Gone" will be shown after the red carpet around 7 p.m.

Joining Cusack will be young Chicago first-time actresses Shelan O'Keefe and Gracie Bednarczyk. They play his two daughters in the film about losing his wife in war and what it's like on his family in the U.S.

If you miss the night's festivities, I'll again be on the carpet to bring you full coverage. Also, stay tuned for Sunday night's appearance by Anthony Hopkins. He's the writer, director and star in "Slipstream".
