Here is the synopsis for “End of Watch”:

In their mission to abide by their oath to serve and protect, officer Brian Taylor (Jake Gyllenhaal) and officer Mike Zavala (Michael Peña) have formed a powerful brotherhood to ensure they both go home at the “End of Watch”. The only guarantee for these officers is that there are no guarantees when patrolling the streets of Los Angeles.

Between the blue lights, blaring sirens and adrenaline-pumping action thrives an honest and often humorous banter between partners who spend most of their days in a police car awaiting the next call. The officers have formed a bond that allows them to function as a unit in the face of danger while knowing full well – at any moment – they could be called on to lay down their lives.

The vivid action unfolds entirely through footage of handheld cameras shot from the point of view of police officers, gang members, surveillance cameras, dash cams and citizens caught in the line of fire. This 360-degree perspective creates a riveting and immediate portrait of the city’s darkest, most violent streets and back alleys along with the brave men and women patrolling them.
