CHICAGO – Season Seven of Chicago's Asian Pop-Up Cinema (APUC) continues on Friday, October 26th, 2018, with a FREE SCREENING of “Ritoma,” a film about the surprising obsession of Tibetan nomads regarding basketball. The U.S. basketball coach who traveled to Tibet to teach the game, Bill Johnson, will make an appearance at the screening, along with Patrick McDonald of HollywoodChicago.com, who will interview Johnson and moderate an audience Q&A. The film will be in a different location than usual, Studio A of the Joffrey Ballet Tower on 10 East Randolph Street in Chicago's Loop. For details and tickets (free, but you need to register),
